HERING IN JAIL BOND IS $68,000 FOR 8 CHARGES

Cashier of Looted Chicago Bank Unruffled by Prison Bars.

OCCUPIES THE CELL OF OLD EMBEZZLER

Woman to Be Examined As to the Whereabouts of President Stensland.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—H. W. Hering, cashier of the looted Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, was put in jail this afternoon.

He will stay there until he is arraigned on August 20 before Judge Kersten on seven bench warrants, charging forgery, larceny, and perjury, unless his friends are able to furnish $68,000 bail.

It is the cell once occupied by Charles W. Spaulding, recently released from the State penitentiary after serving five years for embezzling State funds which had been entrusted to the Globe Savings Bank, of which he was president. On either side of Hering are cells occupied by just common jailbirds, men who rob only one or two persons at a time.

Hering went to his cell composed and unruffled as ever. Seen by the reporters a few moments later, he said that he had been instructed by his attorney not to talk.

Goes to Jail Unconcerned.

Going to jail was a program the necessity of which Hering had evidently figured out, and he was prepared. In the court room he exchanged pleasant remarks with those who approached him. After the arraignment he sat at a table with his attorney and his wife and daughter. Of the four he seemed the least concerned. He looked weary, but not deeply interested. From all that one might judge of any mental anguish he may have been suffering, Hering could just as well have been at a meeting of Stensland's dummy directors.

The bench warrants served upon Hering contain altogether eight distinct charges. They are as follows:

1 and 2—Forgery, on complaint of M. A. Labay, director of the bank.

3—Forgery, complaint of N. C. Bartholdy, director of the bank.

4 and 5—Perjury, complaint of Cassius C. Jones, bank examiner.

6—Conspiracy to cheat and defraud the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank of its money, property, and goods, complaint of Examiner Jones.

7—Larceny, complaint of Examiner Jones.

8—Embezzlement, complaint of Examiner Jones.

Hering's ride to jail was like that of any criminal—in a patrol wagon—except that he was accompanied by Attorneys Barbour and Comerford, Assistant Chief Shuetler, three deputy sheriffs, and two policemen.

Attorney John J. Coburn arrived at the jail a few moments later to take charge of the prisoner's defense.

Preliminary Trial Postponed.

Judge Kersten asked whether the defendant was ready for a preliminary hearing. Attorney Coburn said that he had just been called into the case and that he wanted time. Then the court proceeded to consider the amount of the bonds.

"Your honor, I wish to call your attention to the fact that the prisoner is entitled to some consideration because of the circumstances of his arrest," said Attorney Coburn. "No matter what the charges against him are you cannot escape from the fact that he did not try to get away, that he surrendered himself to the authorities. For these reasons, I believe, he is entitled to a lower bond than he should otherwise be asked to furnish."

Judge Kersten would not take this view. "The extent of the defalcation must be considered," said he. "I am told that it must figure $680,000. There are two charges of perjury, which are based on his own statements."

"I believe that Mr. Hering is not guilty of robbing this bank," said Attorney Coburn.

"I believe that he is entitled to leniency in the matter of bond, and I do not want the statements of opposing counsel to be taken for granted with regard to his actions."

Bond Fixed at $68,000.

Judge Kersten then fixed the bond in the first six counts at $10,000 each, in the larceny charge at $5,000, and in the embezzlement charge at $3,000.

Attorney Coburn said that he was going out of the city tonight, and would make no effort to secure bond for his client until Monday. The preliminary hearing was then set for Monday, August 20.

While secret negotiations are believed to be in progress between the representatives of the State's attorney's office and the friends of Paul O. Stensland, by OYSTER BAY, Aug. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth reached Oyster Bay at 8:15 this evening on board the Sylph, which took them from the steamer St. Paul at 5 p. m.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt and all the members of the family were on the J. West Roosevelt pier to welcome the travelers when they were landed by the Sylph's launch. After an affectionate greeting all around the members of the reunited family were driven to Sagamore Hill.

MANY PETTY MISHAPS MARK HOME COMING.

The arrival of the Longworths at Oyster Bay was replete with petty mishaps.

Mishap No. 1 was the arrival of the Sylph three hours late. When 7 o'clock came and the tourists had not arrived, the party sat down to dinner, but the feast had been robbed of its chief attraction. The delay was due to the storm that suddenly came up over Long Island Sound.

Sylph at Wrong Pier.

Mishap No. 2 was this: When the tooting of the Sylph gave notice of her arrival the President's party was still at the table. The echoes of the whistle had hardly died away before there was a scramble from the board out to the pier, and a rush for the W. Emory Roosevelt pier, at which it was supposed the launch from the yacht would tie up. The President also was to be the first to kiss the lips of Mrs. Longworth. When the party reached the pier they saw, to their dismay, that the launch was heading for the J. West Roosevelt pier, about a quarter of a mile further down the beach.

With a whomp the President ran toward the landing place, with Philip and George, the sons of Emory Roosevelt, running closely behind, and Teddy, Jr., trailing in the rear.

President Loses First Kiss.

Slowly but surely Teddy, Jr., forged ahead, and just as certainly did the President, his chest heaving woefully, take last place.

Teddy, Jr., reached the pier a full ten yards ahead of his nearest competitor. As Mrs. Longworth stepped from the launch Teddy, Jr., gave a war whoop and ran into her arms, thus winning the first kiss.

Then there were kisses for everybody.

QUELL PULAJANES IS ORDER ISSUED BY GENERAL LEE

Campaign Against Troublesome Filipinos of Visayan Group.

The War Department has made public a general order issued by Brig. Gen. Jesse M. Lee, commanding the department of Visayas in the Philippines, providing for a vigorous campaign against the Pulajan, who have recently given so much trouble in those islands.

The disaffected islands are divided into districts, and the troops are reorganized, the aim being to distribute them in such manner as will make it possible to run down the outlaws without the necessity of undertaking long and arduous marches. The order says:

"Officers in charge of districts will have general supervision of their districts for the preservation of order and the protection of peaceful inhabitants, and will co-operate with the officers in other districts as much as possible.

"All columns and escorts will be of sufficient strength to obviate the possibility of any reverse. While the campaign against the outlaws will be conducted with the utmost vigor and persistence, it will at the same time be marked with that spirit of humanity which characterizes our forces."

DR. CHANCELLOR ELECTED SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

DR. WILLIAM ESTABROOK CHANCELLOR,
Of Paterson, N. J., Who Was Last Night Chosen to Be Executive Head of the District of Columbia Public Schools.

NEW JERSEY MAN WINS SELECTION OVER 50 OTHERS

Now in Charge of Paterson Schools, But Will Accept.

"Should the Board of Education of the city of Washington see fit to elect me superintendent, I would resign immediately and proceed to Washington next Monday, subject to returning for two or three days to clean up matters in my present position."

"Let me add that I shall esteem it a very decided honor to be entrusted with the management of the Washington schools."

—Dr. Chancellor in a letter to Barton W. Evermann, chairman of the special committee of the Board of Education appointed to consider candidates for the superintendency of the Washington schools.

After several weeks of deliberation the Board of Education late yesterday afternoon appointed William Estabrook Chancellor, of Paterson, N. J., superintendent of the public schools of the District of Columbia, succeeding former Superintendent A. T. Stuart, who resigned almost immediately after the appointment of the new Board of Education.

Dr. Chancellor is superintendent of the Paterson public schools, which position he has held since 1904. The selection of the new superintendent was made after the special committee had given careful consideration to the qualifications of more than fifty candidates, among them being a number of the most distinguished educators of the country.

POSSE HUNTING FOR ASSAILANT OF THE MAGIAS

Husband and Wife Expected to Die As Result of Atrocious Attack.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—Posses of citizens from Westville and Almonesson, N. J., are still scouring the country for the negro, who early this morning beat into insensibility Grace Magia.

Magia is at the Cooper Hospital, Camden, and physicians there have given up all hope for his recovery.

While Magia lay on the floor the negro grabbed his wife, who was attempting to escape by a window, and demanded money. He knocked her down and beat her about the head. The woman gave him a bag containing $107, the couple's savings.

The negro then choked her and criminally assaulted her. He jumped out of a window and disappeared.

Feeling against the assailant is running high among the citizens of the community, and if they are successful in locating him tonight he will probably be lynched on the spot where he is captured.

Magia's children, aged four and eight years, frightened at the scuffle, hid under the bed during the attack upon their parents. When the negro fled the oldest child ran to a neighbor's house, and summoned aid.

Mrs. Magia, the doctors fear, may die of shock, and her husband cannot recover. He has a fractured skull, and the doctors say that he must have been hit a dozen times over the head and shoulders.

UNCONSCIOUS SIX DAYS MAN IS STILL LIVING

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Unconscious for six days, with physicians working over him continually, Michael Radigan's peculiar condition has attracted much attention in St. Mary's Hospital, Brooklyn. Though several times seemingly on the point of regaining consciousness he each time relapsed.

As he was leaving his home, in Rochester avenue, last Sunday evening, he was struck on the head by an unseen assailant. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to St. Mary's Hospital, where it was found he had concussion of the brain.

TORTURED AT SEA BY SHIP CAPTAIN, DECLARES SAILOR

Stowaway From Trinidad Gives Lurid Picture of Brutality.

Joseph A. Williams, a sailor who came into the Washington Channel yesterday evening aboard the schooner Horatio Baker, loaded with asphalt from Trinidad, gives a harrowing account of tortures endured at sea. Williams was cut and bruised, and after being arrested by the police was sent in an ambulance to Providence Hospital for treatment.

Williams boarded the schooner at Trinidad, and during the long voyage he claims to have been brutally treated. When he left the hospital his head was swathed in bandages and he could not walk without limping.

In his cell at the Fifth precinct, Williams declared that he had wanted to come to the United States and had secreted himself in the bottom of the schooner, and he did not make his presence known until the ship was out at sea. The stowaway claims that Captain Rohr had him flogged severely and that during the entire trip he was half starved and kept in irons.

Captain Rohr tells an entirely different story. He says Williams, after the ship was out at sea, made his presence known and tried to assault the captain of the vessel with an iron bar, when he was seized and held a prisoner.

The penalty provided by the United States statutes upon captains of vessels for bringing a stowaway to this country is $500, and the knotty problem of whether Captain Rohr is guilty of a violation of the law will be presented tomorrow morning to the immigration officials, and at the same time the case of Williams will be considered.

RAILROAD GIVES SPACE FOR HERO CASTRO'S BOAT

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 11.—Barred by jealous skippers from docking his famous little schooner, the Alberta, as a pleasure boat at the Inlet Wharf, Capt. Mark Castro, who has been finding rather costly the role of hero acquired by the Cherokee rescue, discovered an unexpected solution to the dock problem this afternoon.

Superintendent Lovell of the West Jersey and Seashore railroad, has granted the skipper the use of the old Pennsylvania wharf at the Inlet, formerly used by the Brigantine steamers.

DEATH IN CELL DUE TO WHISKY, SAYS CORONER

H. P. Totten, of Bluefields, W. Va., Victim of Alcoholism.

FOUND BY POLICEMAN IN STUPOR ON STREET

Taken to Sixth Precinct in Early Morning, Expires Without Regaining Consciousness.

Cold in death, his body distorted and showing evidences that he had suffered terribly before the end, H. P. Totten, a wealthy contractor from Bluefield, W. Va., was found lying face downward on the asphalt floor of cell No. 2 at the Sixth precinct station yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock.

"Death from acute gastritis superinduced by alcoholism," was the substance of the certificate issued by Coroner Nevitt, who viewed the remains in the dingy cell, stated that an inquest was not necessary and ordered the body removed to the morgue, where it will be held until relatives are heard from.

Stupefied When Arrested.

Inquiry developed the fact that the man was stupefied from drink and unable to walk or talk when taken into custody yesterday morning about 9 o'clock by Policeman Armstrong, of the Sixth precinct.

It was further learned that although frequent groans were heard from the man's cell during the time he was incarcerated and several policemen peered through the iron bars at him while he was writhing in agony on the floor he was not given any medical attention.

Spent His Money Freely.

With a party of business men of his own locality, Totten came to Washington several days ago and registered at the Metropolitan Hotel. After the transaction of his business during the day he adjourned to the buffet and spent the evening with friends and in a spirit of good-fellowship revelled in the delights of his short vacation. He spent his money freely and persons who were with him say that he went to his room Thursday morning much the worse for his midnight lark.

Retired Early Thursday.

On Thursday he appeared late for breakfast and complained of feeling ill. During the day he regained his strength and appeared in his usual good health. He attended to his business in the afternoon and retired early.

Friday morning, however, he was unable to see the business parties with whom he was dealing and started out to see the sights and it was not long before he met with some friends. They adjourned to a nearby cafe, where they took liquid refreshments for several hours, and it is said the West Virginian went to the hotel for dinner. Later they met him in the hotel buffet, and had had nothing to eat at that time and it is said was still drinking.

His Whereabouts Unknown.

At the hotel yesterday it was stated that his room was unoccupied on Friday night.

His friends were at a loss to account for his whereabouts throughout the early morning hours. From a saloon-keeper near the vicinity of the hotel it is learned that Totten made his appearance there shortly after daybreak and asked for something to brace him up. He took tonics and soft drinks, then left the place.

Policeman Armstrong found the man lying on the pavement at the corner of Fourth and Ninth streets and Pennsylvania avenue unable to navigate, having evidently collapsed on his way to the hotel. The patrol wagon was summoned and Totten was whisked off to the station house, where he was searched, carried back to one of the cells, and placed on the iron bench.

Tried to Talk to Keeper.

For several hours no sound came from the cell but about noon moans and groans were heard as if the man was in agony.

About 3 o'clock, when the moans and groans were no longer heard, Henley again went to the cell to see if Totten was asleep. Calling to the man as he was lying on the floor and receiving no response Henley thought that all was not right and unlocked the door.

Entering the cell he shook the man violently, but there was no response. Henley summoned a physician who pronounced life extinct.

Coroner Nevitt was informed and arrived a short time later. The body when viewed by the Coroner was in the same position as when found by Henley, and there was every reason to believe that the West Virginian had done his best to get to the door and call out to persons in the station for aid.

Inspector Boardman when informed of the man's death had an investigation made and later his identity was established by means of a mileage book and the key to his room at the hotel. Inspector Boardman telegraphed to relatives in Bluefield, but at a late hour last night no reply had been received.
